Dear Commissioner,

I was shocked to learn recently that Kelloggs Corn Flakes contained genetically engineered ingredients! Kelloggs Corn Flakes! Children's food! Outrageous!

I think that food that is genetically altered or contains genetically engineered ingredients should be clearly labeled. I believe that I have a right to know what it is that I am feeding my family. I have reservations about genetically altered food for myself and my family. I think that it should be thoroughly tested and any product containing such should be so labeled.

Sincerely,

Robert C. Loree
